1. The first step in the process of identifying a problem is to recognize that a problem exists. This is often done by comparing current performance with a desired state or goal. Once a problem is identified, the next step is to define the problem more precisely. This involves determining the scope of the problem, the resources available, and the constraints that may be affecting the problem. The third step is to analyze the problem. This involves identifying the causes of the problem and the relationships between the different elements of the problem. The fourth step is to develop a solution. This involves identifying the different options available and evaluating them based on their potential to solve the problem. The fifth step is to implement the solution. This involves putting the solution into action and monitoring its progress. The sixth step is to evaluate the results. This involves comparing the actual results with the desired results and determining whether the problem has been solved. If the problem has not been solved, the process may need to be repeated.
